The Author and the Book

Edward Michael Zerr, who compiled this book of Bible questions, was born October 15, 1877 in central Illinois. At an early age, the family moved to Missouri, where Brother Zerr was initiated in the art of brick-making (his father's trade) and also obtained his common-school education. In 1893, he became obedient to the gospel, and began preaching the same in July, 1897. He was privileged to attend protracted Bible studies conducted by A. M. Morris and Daniel Sommer.

An avid reader, the author delved into ancient history and spent twenty years studying that history in connection with prophetic and historical parts of the Bible. He has ever been the teacher type, rather than the fervid or emotionally evangelistic type of personality. And in view of that fact, many of his writings have been directed toward the line of textbook work for those whom he taught. Although he has published several smaller booklets, this is the first one of this size to be offered to the brotherhood of Christ. It is sincerely believed by those of us who have reviewed its contents, that it will fill a long-felt need in our libraries.

A casual reader will be impressed with the painstaking work which has been requisite in compiling this volume. The purpose of it is to encourage Bible Study in the home. We trust that you who receive the book will at once begin an investigation of the sacred truth of the ages, with this book open beside your Bible. If you will diligently take your family through this volume of questions and attempt a reply to each, by the time you reach the last page, you will have been to a Bible Study right in your own home. Encourage others to do this also, for our strength lies in the interest which we take in the investigation and practice of the precepts contained in the Holy Scriptures.

W. Carl Ketcherside.

PRE FACE

The questions in this volume are intended as study or thought questions rather than review questions. They are offered as an aid to teachers who often express difficulty in formulating proper questions for their classes. Also as aid to the student in general as a suggestive guide for him in his studies. The questions will be found to be suggestive enough to be of real assistance in the study of the particular chapter, and yet not enough so as to furnish the answer. The student will be required to rely on the Text for his information in answering.

There is not a chapter in the New Testament that contains less than fifty questions and many chapters have more. Besides the fifty or more study questions on each chapter, there is found at the end of the longer books and of a group of books, a set of review questions in the form of true-false tests. In all there are sixteen thousand questions.

While the questions over each chapter are suggested by that particular chapter, yet the student will be expected to have recourse to information in other parts of the Bible, in the same manner that is usually done in the teaching of a chapter in class or church services. Many of the arguments and allusions of the apostles take for granted the student has obtained knowledge of the Old Testament and other parts of the Sacred Text. See Romans 15: 4. And the author of these questions is assuming the same of his readers.

Questions may be used by the class for study purposes but they should be required to answer from memory, or at least by direct reference to the text under consideration in the class.

A precautionary statement might be proper here. Care should be had in answering any question not to include more in the answer than is required by the question. To do so might infringe upon a following question and thus make confusion. This restriction is also for the purpose of testing whether the student has clear and distinct perception of the question.

It will be observed that the questions in Revelation are intended only to induce familiarity with the statements of the book. The nature of that document necessarily would preclude questions going into the theories of the book. Since no treatment of this document can be final without knowledge and use of much history to be found only outside of inspired writ, it follows that such a work as this could not offer questions other than as suggested above. However, since familiarity with even the wording of the last book of the Bible is not generally had, if such result comes from use of these questions, they will not have been composed and used in vain.
